COURSE DESCRIPTION
According to Richard Rorty, Heidegger and Wittgenstein are the two most important philosophers of the 20th century. This course is a careful reading of Heidegger’s famous early work, Being and Time. The course explores ideas such as: the critique of Western metaphysics and the retrieval of the question of being; the ontological structure of human beings; the wordliness of the world and the relational totality of meaning; the hermeneutical structure of understanding; inauthenticity and its socio-ontological sources; boredom, anxiety, and care; truth as discovery and as disclosure; being toward death, conscience, and anticipatory resoluteness; time and temporality.

Heidegger introduces a new philosophical vocabulary that cannot be deciphered through individual study alone. The successful student of Heidegger will carefully do the readings before class and come to class prepared to ask questions and engage in class discussions. Regular attendance is a must. No specialized knowledge of phenomenological or existentialist philosophy is necessary for a basic reading of Heidegger. However, some knowledge of Plato and Aristotle and familiarity with some of the more important figures of modern philosophy (rationalist, empiricist, and Kant) and 19th century philosophy (Hegel and Nietzsche) is highly desirable.

Students who cannot meet these expectations should reconsider taking the course at this time.
