Sessional/Overload Course Offerings

The Department of Philosophy intends to offer the following course(s) during the Fall 2022

In accordance with Article 54 of the 2021-2025 Faculty Association Collective Agreement, the Department of Philosophy invites applications from qualified individuals interested in teaching the following course(s) during Inter/Summer Session 2022

NOTE: Please be aware that this course posting may require the courses to be offered using alternative learning technology in an online environment. To learn about what resources are available to learn and use these technologies please contact the Office of Open Learning or the Centre for Teaching and Learning.

Fall 2022:*PHIL-2260 Law, Punishment and Morality

Lecture in person, tentatively scheduled for Monday 19:00 – 21:50 PM

An introduction to the philosophical issues related to understanding the nature of law and legal obligation, the relation between law and morality, and the purpose of punishment. The theoretical points and distinctions will be illustrated by their applications to particular current issues. (Prerequisite: semester 3 or above standing, or consent of the instructor.)

PHIL-1600 Reasoning Skills (Hybrid course)

Tuesday (lecture 19:00-21:50 PM in-person and online) and Thursday (face-to-face, in-person workshops) 19:00 – 20:20 PM (times may vary)

An explanation of, and practice in, the basic knowledge, skills and attitudes which are essential components of reasoning well. Topics include: the role of language; evaluating sources (including from the internet); analyzing, evaluating and diagramming arguments; inference strength; writing an extended piece of reasoning. (Antirequisite: PHIL-1620.) (1.5 lecture, 1.5 lab hour per week)

Specific requirements to PHIL-1600:

The department requires an Instructor whose duties include directing a cohort of Graduate Assistants (Ph.D. students) who will be running the workshops for Philosophy 1600 (Reasoning Skills). The successful candidate will manage the running of the course, including the preparation and release of electronic lectures each week and directing and supporting the PhD students in the weekly workshops. Through in-person discussion with the workshop leaders, the Instructor will ensure that materials for the workshops and exams are properly prepared and will oversee the running of the mid-term and final exam.

Preferred qualification for PHIL-1600: experience working with a team of Graduate Assistants.

Minimum essential qualification: Candidate must possess a MA in Philosophy (or have an equivalent background in Argumentation Studies).

All Candidates should include the following:

- A brief statement that explains how the applicant's teaching and research background prepares her/him to teach this particular course
- A previous syllabus related to the subject matter or a sample syllabus of the advertised course

New Applications should also include the following: (If candidate has previously taught at U of Windsor review Article 54:08 b)

- Letter of application, including statement of citizenship/immigration status
- A current curriculum vitae (for the Faculty Association template click here: <https://www.wufa.ca/article-131/schedule-a-curriculum-vitae-form>)
- A statement of teaching philosophy and interests
- Three current letters of reference. This should be limited to academic references from Professors or Instructors who are familiar with the candidate's work.
- Evidence of qualifications (e.g. transcripts, certification of degrees, courses taken, dissertation and thesis topic, indications of successful teaching, etc.) This should focus on the relevance of Graduate Courses, Major Papers, Theses, and other Graduate work to the area of specialization or expertise of the course in question.

Candidates who have previously taught at the University in the past two (2) years (article 54:08 a) and have submitted their written statement of interest by March 1 annually shall be considered for all courses to which they are qualified to teach.

Those who have taught previously at the University shall not be required to complete the application form or supply letters of recommendation for each reappointment (article 54:08 b).
