Workflow for Faculty Requests to Pursue Teaching, Learning, or Service Activities on Campus

As a faculty member, you wish to undertake an on-campus activity or are asked by AAU head to do so and your department has completed necessary steps (e.g. safety plans) to enable the relevant return to campus plan.

Research activity

Submit request under the Resumption of Research Framework.

If the request is self-initiated, submit a request to your Dean or Dean's Delegate for on-campus teaching, learning, or service activities through the online interface provided by your faculty.

If one or more of risk factors, you should speak with your health care provider and seek an individualized assessment based on your own risk.

You may wish to seek an accommodation based on your level of risk.

Request is not approved. You may wish to discuss alternatives with the Dean, Dean's Delegate, or your AAU head.

Follow all campus safety regulations regarding hand washing, respiration etiquette, social distancing, mask wearing, and sanitation of personal and shared spaces, while on campus.

Teaching or service activity

(Optional) Use the Individual Risk Self-Assessment Tool (Appendix A) to make a self-assessment of your particular risk of serious complications associated with being infected by COVID-19.

Your risk of serious complications is no higher than normal.

If the request is self-initiated, submit a request to your Dean or Dean's Delegate for on-campus teaching, learning, or service activities through the online interface provided by your faculty.

Requests will be prioritized based on the criteria found in the Faculty Return to Campus Framework.

Request is approved.

Before coming to campus:
- Complete all required training
- Download the Lancer App (use before each time you come to campus to affirm your fitness to be on campus)

If at any time you do not meet all of the conditions outlined in the Safety App, stay home.

Your health care provider determines that your risk of serious complications is no higher than normal.
