

APPLIED SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY MA & PHD

- 1 AREAS OF EMPHASIS
- 2 PROGRAM CURRICULUM
- 3 RESEARCH LABS & GROUPS
- 4 RESEARCH, TEACHING AND ADVOCACY EXCELLENCE

WHAT MAKES US DIFFERENT?

- Our emphasis on applied research-based interventions to promote positive change for society, organizations, and individuals.
- Students develop strengths and experience in assessment, intervention/prevention, and follow-up/evaluation in organizational and/or community contexts.
- Practica and internships are integral parts of the program.

OUR GOALS

The goal of the University of Windsor's Applied Social Psychology graduate programs is to educate students as researchers and practitioners in various areas of Social Psychology, with an emphasis on using research to promote positive change, whether it be at a societal, organizational, or individual level. The program's combination of course work, research, and practicum/internship experiences provide students with the training necessary to work in a variety of settings, including universities, educational and community organizations, government agencies, hospitals, profit/not-for-profit businesses, and management consulting firms.
