Psychology Participant Pool Researcher Manual Changes

Department of Psychology
University of Windsor

- Penalties have now been added for researchers who fail to credit their participants in a timely manner (i.e. 48 hours). Researchers will be given two warnings and on their third warning they will lose access to the Participant Pool for one week. (See page 26 in full manual for more details).
- Clarification of circumstances when researchers may choose not to award full credit (might give out partial credit) for studies based on validity checks or failure to complete a study with authentic engagement (See page 8 in full manual for more details).
- Reminder that researchers can post 50 credit hours every 7 days. It is suggested to add timeslots weekly and not for the whole semester at the beginning of the term. Researchers are prohibited to post time slots after the pool closing date (doing so will result in a penalty). (See page 22 in full manual for more details).
