University President Provides Update on Coronavirus

The University of Windsor is actively monitoring issues and responding to concerns associated with the 2019 Novel Coronavirus (COVID-19). The health and safety of members of the campus community remains and will continue to remain our top priority. We encourage everyone to exercise discretion and to follow the guidelines for illness prevention outlined on the Government of Ontario Coronavirus website.

UW also established a Pandemic Planning Committee which meets regularly and is reviewing all aspects of how we minimize risk to our community and also support the development of emergency preparedness strategies going forward.

The committee is also co-ordinating efforts through ongoing co-operation with other post-secondary institutions; the Windsor-Essex County Health Unit; and both the provincial and federal governments through the Council of Ontario Universities and Universities Canada.

The senior management of the University of Windsor is also meeting, on a daily basis, to assist with information flow and risk mitigation.

All classes have been suspended and to be continued on-line and non essential services allowed to work from home.

Reception At Queen's Park

The University of Windsor — led by President Robert Gordon and Chancellor Mary Jo Haddad (BScN 1984, LL.D. 2005) — hosted a reception at Queen's Park, seat of the provincial legislature, on Monday, March 2, to champion the University's role as key player in the future of the Windsor-Essex region and Ontario.

Among the nearly 100 elected officials and legislative staff attending were Ross Romano (LL.B. 2004), the minister of colleges and universities; Michael Tibollo (LL.B. 1985), associate minister of mental health and addictions; and Prabmeet Singh Sarkaria (J.D. 2015), associate minister of small business and red tape reduction. All three are UWindsor law grads.

Dr. Gordon, in an address to the gathering, said the University is dealing with challenges related to the Great Lakes and to our national borders, helping ensure safe, vibrant and healthy communities, and promoting sustainable manufacturing.

Local MPPs attending included Rick Nicholls (Chatham-Kent—Leamington); Windsor-Tecumseh's Percy Hatfield (BA 1987); Lisa Gretzky (Windsor West) and Taras Natyshak (Essex).

Joining Gordon as part of the University delegation were K.W. Michael Siu, vice-president of research and innovation; Chris Houser, dean of the Faculty of Science; and Lisa Porter, professor of biomedical sciences.

Former Minister Dwight Duncan Is the Executive in Residence

Duncan, a UWindsor alumnus (BA 1984, MBA 1989, LL.D. 2013), spent 25 years in public service and is currently a senior strategic advisor at McMillan LLP, as well as a principal at McMillan Vantage, the firm's public policy advisory service.

He is also a board member of Travelers Insurance Canada, the Dominion General Insurance Company, Crown Crest Trust, and the Global Risk Institute, and serves as chair of the board of directors of the Windsor-Detroit Bridge Authority.

Mitchell Fields, Dean of the Odette School of Business, says he is delighted to have Duncan on board his faculty. "As a business school, we believe it is very important to expose our students to real world leaders," he says.

"He brings a wealth of political and managerial leadership to the school and our students." Since September, Duncan has been teaching a class on managing political risk, using his experience in private and public policy and his nearly 10 years in cabinet to drive interest and discussion.

One of my lectures is on P3 in Canada and the US. I use the Gordie Howe Bridge as an example when teaching my students the importance of risk management in both for-profit, crown corporations, and not-for-profit organizations.

Law professor Julie Macfarlane named to the Order of Canada in recognition of her advocacy on behalf of self-represented litigants.

A citation noted Dr. Macfarlane’s contributions as a lawyer and mediator, and advocacy for self-represented litigants. She is director of the National Self-Represented Litigants Project. Macfarlane’s appointment was one of 120 announced Dec. 28 by Gov. Gen. Julie Payette.

University Mourns The Loss of Five Members in Plane Crash

On Jan. 8, the University of Windsor lost five cherished members of its community, who were returning to campus, when Ukrainian International Airlines’ Flight PS752 crashed in Iran and claimed the lives of all 176 on board.

Engineering doctoral candidates Hamidreza Setareh Kokab, Pedram Jadidi, Zahra Naghibi and her spouse Mohammad Abbaspour Ghadi, and biology research assistant Samira Bashiri will be remembered by friends, faculty, and staff as vital contributors and caring companions.

We all feel the tremendous depth of human suffering caused by this tragedy,” UWindsor president Robert Gordon said.

Former Law Dean Honoured

The Canadian Bar Association named a former University of Windsor law dean as one of two outstanding members of the black legal community honoured for Black History Month. Juanita Westmoreland-Traoré, a judge of the Court of Québec for the District of Montréal, served as Dean of the University of Windsor Faculty of Law from 1996 to 1999. She and Hugh Fraser will receive President’s Awards, honouring significant contributions to the Canadian legal profession.

Juanita Westmoreland-Traoré is a woman of firsts: the first black, female Canadian law dean, and the first black judge to sit on a Quebec bench,” said association president Vivene Salmon. “She has been an amazing trailblazer and role model for me and other women of colour, a shining example of what we can achieve in our legal careers.”

Law Society to Recognize UWindsor Jeff Berryman

The Law Society of Ontario will confer a medal on Jeff Berryman, UWindsor associate vice-president academic, in recognition of his career achievements and contribution to the legal profession at its annual awards ceremony, in May in Toronto.

“He is recognized both nationally and internationally as a scholar in his field of expertise — contracts, remedies, and restitutions. He has provided exceptional leadership at the University of Windsor.

Strategic Mandate Agreement Submitted to Province

The University of Windsor's Strategic Mandate Agreement has received unanimous approval from the Board of Governors as well as unanimous support from Senate.

The University's agreement with the Government of Ontario, SMA3 establishes the University's performance metrics and targets. Beginning in 2020, approximately $23 million of its provincial grant will be tied to meeting these annual performance targets. By 2024-25, that amount will increase to nearly $56 million.

"We have undertaken a strongly consultative process in developing the SMA3, and input from across campus has been instrumental," said associate vice-president academic Jeff Berryman, a member of the team who led the development of the agreement.

The finalized draft has been submitted to the Ministry of Colleges and Universities, and final documents will be ready for signature by March 31.

"SMA3 is an accountability agreement with Ontario designed to measure the University's performance on certain government-identified metrics," said provost Douglas Kneale. "As a publicly-funded institution, the University of Windsor embraces accountability and transparency, and has worked hard to negotiate an agreement that will allow us to fulfill our academic mission and preserve our performance-based funding.

President Robert Gordon, Provost Douglas Kneale and Associate VP Jeff Berryman wish to thank all those across our campus and community who played a role in the SMA3 process, including everyone who attended the town halls to learn and contribute to the outcome." For more information about the SMA3 and its development process, visit the SMA3 website.

Kinesiology professor Dave Andrews has been named a 3M National Teaching Fellow.

Each year, the kinesiology professor learns the names of all 200 or so students in the class. By the end of the semester, he knows all their names.

Dr. Kneale nominated Andrews for the teaching award on behalf of the University. There was no shortage of students willing to write letters of support.

Andrews is the seventh UWindsor faculty member to be named a 3M National Teaching Fellow.

Past recipients include biology professor Joseph Habowsky, philosophy professor Ralph Johnson, psychology professor Ken Cramer, law professor Donna Marie Eansor, School of Creative Arts professor Veronika Mogyorody, and nursing professor Judy Bornais.

Evolution of the Faculty of Nursing at the University of Windsor

When I first came to the University of Windsor in 1963 to join the Department of Biology, the Nursing program was a section in the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. Two members Miss Florence M Roach and Miss Malloy were engaged in providing the nursing training.

Most of the Nursing training was given by the two Hospitals Hotel Dieu and Metropolitan hospitals for Register Nursing (RN) degree.

The Faculty of Nursing (FoN), formerly a School of Nursing, was established in 1954 housed under the umbrella of the Faculty of Arts and Science of Assumption College, Windsor, Ontario, and affiliated with the University of Western Ontario, and had a post diploma certification in teaching,

In the 1960s, the University of Windsor became a degree granting institution and the School of Nursing within the Faculty of Science began its generic independent four-year Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BScN) degree retaining the other program listed above along with a post diploma to BScN program. The post-diploma BScN program offered baccalaureate degree completion opportunities for those with nursing diplomas. The post diploma program was closed in 2016 due to dwindling applications and growth within other areas of the Faculty of Nursing.

Leadership for the establishment of the School of Nursing was pioneered by the first Director, Florence M. Roach who held the role from 1955 to 1970. Directors to follow included Anna Gupta, Dr. Anna Temple, Dr. Janet Rosenbaum, Dr. Sheila Cameron and Dr. Beth Horsburgh.

In the spring of 2001, the School of Nursing became an independent Faculty of Nursing no longer in the Faculty of Science. The founding Dean for the Faculty of Nursing was Dr. Sheila Dresen who held the position from 2000-2003 followed by the leadership of Dr. Elaine Duffy (2003 -2006) and Gwen Ebbett (2006-2010). The current Dean, Dr. Linda Patrick is completing her second five-year term and a new Dean will be announced this spring to begin a first term July 1, 2020.

In the fall of 2001, we admitted the first students into the four-year Honours Collaborative BScN program in partnership with St. Clair College and Lambton College. In this agreement, the Honours Collaborative BScN is offered on all four sites including all four years at the University of Windsor. All college students transfer to the university site at the completion of year two of the program. College students are given the opportunity to transfer back to their home school for the final semester of year four.

After a successful twenty years of collaboration, the recent announcement by the Ministry of Colleges and Universities to give Ontario Colleges stand-alone BScN degree programs will mean significant changes for the future.

Current graduate programs include

Master of Science in Nursing (MScN) with thesis and two field options of study: Leadership and Advanced Clinical Nursing.

A course-based Master of Nursing (MN) with three field options of study: Leadership, Advanced Clinical Nursing and Nurse Practitioner.

The Primary Health Care Nurse Practitioner (PHCNP) Graduate Diploma program in partnership with a consortium of nine Ontario universities and a Doctor of Philosophy Degree in Nursing (PhD). We are eagerly anticipating our first graduates in the PhD program in 2021. We are very proud of our International reputation for educating

CIDA Grant and Jordan Program

The CIDA collaborative project which lasted for 12 years, was a successful initiative

Including faculty and student exchanges between the University of Windsor and the Jordan University of Science and Technology.

UWindsor grad Donald Mavinic (BASc 1969, MASc 1971, PhD 1973), receives Order of Canada

a professor emeritus in the Department of Civil Engineering at the University of British Columbia and an internationally recognized expert in water treatment, received a call to the Order of Canada from Gov. Gen. Julie Payette on Dec. 28.

"The announcement praised Dr. Mavinic for his contributions to environmental engineering science and technology in Canada, notably in the areas of liquid wastewater and residuals management.

It is the latest in a series of honours for Mavinic. In 2010, he received the Ernest C. Manning Innovation Award and the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada (NSERC) Synergy Award

The following year, he was given the Meritorious Achievement Award from the Association of Professional Engineers and Geoscientists of British Columbia.

He is the only Canadian to be named a Water Environment Federation Fellow. In 2016, he received the Engineers Canada Gold Medal Award.

Donates $ 100,000

Loknath Chawla donates $100,000 to the research and support laboratory supplies and equipment, salaries to support undergraduate and graduate researchers in Dr. Siyaram Pandey's cancer research.

"Mr.Chawla said that he came to Canada 45 years ago and earned two degrees from the University of Windsor while working the night shift full-time at a local manufacturer," Chawla recalled. "I was only five credits away from my third degree when my mother was diagnosed with cancer."

Pandey also announced that he has received a $140,000 grant from the Mitacs Accelerate International fund to investigate the interaction of these extracts with drugs used in chemotherapy. Interns will conduct this research in partnership with Synthite Industries, which hopes to market resulting treatments.

Byron P Rourke FRSC

Ph.D.,LL.D.,C.M.,C.Psych.,ABPP-CN,

1939 –2011

Byron P. Rourke founded one of the first child neuropsychology assessment laboratories in North America and was responsible for the creation and development of a doctoral training program in clinical neuropsychology at the University of Windsor that has produced a large cadre of superb scientist-practitioners who range all across Canada and the United States.

He contributed scientifically in describing the behavioral and socio-emotional context of learning disorders, and he was singularly responsible for the evidence-based, breakthrough development of the concept of non-verbal learning disabilities (NLD).

His contributions are important across the life-span as well as seen, for example, in his studies of brain-injured individuals and investigations regarding the onset of abnormal aging.

He lectured widely around the world in his 40 year career as a Professor, and he was appointed University Professor by the University of Windsor in recognition of his embodiment of academic ideals.

Byron was presented the INS Distinguished Career Award for outstanding contributions to the science of neuropsychology, his achievements in clinical practice, and for his educational leadership.

In addition, his service to INS on the Governing Board and as its President marked the introduction of program innovations that are foundational in INS meetings today. He also was an early member of INS and constant proponent of the meaningful development of the INS “International” agenda.

He was passionate about the preservation of the interdisciplinary nature of the Society, and equally devoted to the important role the INS should play in the development of young careers in neuropsychological science and practice.

Recognized as a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada, he was the recipient of numerous honours for scientific contributions from national organizations, including the Donald O. Hebb Award for Distinguished Contributions to Psychology as a Science by the Canadian Psychological Association.

He was appointed a Member of the Order of Canada in 2008 for his contributions to psychology, notably as a founding father of clinical and child neuropsychology in Canada, and for his pioneering research on nonverbal learning disabilities

WURA President's Update

On Coronavirus Issue

Your WURA colleagues are thinking about you as seniors, the most vulnerable for the Corona virus, especially if we have other underlying health issues (which most of us have at our age). We are asked to do social distancing (no hugs or kisses ... especially difficult with our grandchildren), and only to go out for urgent needs, like groceries or to the pharmacy.

A reminder to follow the health guidelines re: hand washing (soap and hot water), proper nutrition every day, enough rest, and for the moment, outdoor exercise, if possible to get fresh air. If you need any assistance, please let us know.

All WURA meetings and activities for the time being are on hold. Our WURA Executive Committee meeting planned for next week has been cancelled. The WURA Spring General Meeting, normally in April, will have to be postponed to May, at the earliest. We will let you know the date of the meeting, as soon as we know and the Corona virus issue passes.

WURA members who cannot get out to get groceries or other needs at this time, please try to lend a hand, if you can. Or at least, try to call them to check on them.

Carol Reader wife of former Dean of Engineering Graham Reader, Walter(Jake) Soderlund, WURA's Vice-President, Jonathan Bayley and Richard Lewis have offered to assist in getting groceries for WURA members. Carol's, Jake's, Jonathan's and Richard's phone numbers and e-mail addresses are listed below. Perhaps, other WURA members are also willing to assist in getting groceries for WURA members, who cannot. Please let me know, if you are also interested in doing this.
