WURA PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE FALL 2012

For many of us, although retired, the rhythm of the academic year remains with us, and we continue to regard our new year as beginning on Labour Day. With that in mind, I send warm greetings and best wishes for all the best in 2012-13.

Since I wrote last, the Joint Consultative Committee, comprised of representatives of WURA and the University's senior administration, met in early June and discussed such topics as changes in the structure of, and responsibility for, pension governance, WURA's contract proposals during the last three negotiating cycles, and ways in which the University could recognize retirees. In response to the last, Dr. Wildeman announced that he was planning to host a tea for retired faculty and librarians in late June.

The President's Tea for Retirees was duly held in the Ambassador Auditorium on June 27th. A thoroughly lovely affair, it attracted around 70 retirees and their guests. Dr. Wildeman expressed the University's gratitude to retirees for all they have done to make the University of Windsor the fine institution it is, and indicated that he intends to make the tea an annual event. In return, WURA's gratitude was extended to Dr. Wildeman.

Following the tea, the University President's Office and WURA received numerous expressions of pleasure from attendees, who greatly enjoyed socializing with former colleagues and much appreciated the University's recognition. I am pleased to take this opportunity to express our sincerest thanks to Dr. Wildeman once again.

My two years as WURA President end with our Fall General Meeting on November 8th. It has been a privilege to work in this capacity on behalf of retirees and the University. I pass the baton to our very capable Vice-President, Ihor Stebelsky, with every confidence that he will continue to serve WURA with distinction.

Best wishes to you and yours for a happy, healthy, and fulfilling autumn.

Sincerely,

Kate McCrone, President, WURA

UW Celebrates 50th Anniversary

WURA Joins The Celebrations and Commits to Produce a Book of Reminiscences

As noted in the March 2012 Newsletter, 2013 will mark the 50th anniversary of the University of Windsor's establishment as a secular, provincially-funded institution. During the 2013-14 academic year this important milestone will be celebrated in numerous ways, among them the Retirees' 50th Anniversary Project, to which I invited your contributions, and which is proceeding well.

So far 60 retirees have committed to writing pieces for a book of reminiscences, which is being supported generously by the Office of the President, the Office of the Provost, WURA, and WUFA.

The editorial committee (Sheila Cameron, Marty Gervais, Ralph Johnson, Kate McCrone, Ken Pryke, and Lois Smedick) will be finalizing the list of contributors by the end of October.

We continue to have some gaps in the areas covered, so the invitation to contribute is extended, and I strongly encourage you to consider becoming involved. For further information, or to propose a contribution, please contact me at: kem@uwindsor.ca

UWINDSOR Submits Document To Ministry of Collegesand Universities

A document submitted to the Ministry of Training, Colleges and Universities this week begins the process of developing a strategic mandate agreement between the province and the University of Windsor.

The ministry had asked the University of Windsor, along with all universities and colleges in Ontario, to:

- describe the institution and its role in the Ontario system;
- describe what it is doing in the interests of students, in meeting the needs of the creative economy, and in increasing productivity and innovation;
- project the impact of its plans on enrolment;
- demonstrate how those plans relate to its institutional vision.

UWindsor president Alan Wildeman said the strategic plan, Thinking Forward... Taking Action, commits the University to the principles of putting students first, meeting the needs of the creative economy, and focusing on productivity, innovation and sustainability.

In the submission, Dr. Wildeman identifies three priorities that align with the government's stated aims: transforming the large classroom experience, strengthening community engagement and postsecondary collaboration, and building on the University's strengths in international engagement, research and graduate programs.

Read the entire submission on his Web page dedicated to public accountability.

Campus Barbeque

The entire campus community was invited to celebrate the start of the academic year with a free barbecue from noon to 1:30 p.m. (or while supplies last) in the quad between Dillon and Chrysler halls—rain or shine.

Enjoy live music with your free sausages, chips and drinks—even a vegetarian option, served up by campus celebrities. The event is hosted by Special Events, Office of the President; the Alumni Association; and the University of Windsor Students' Alliance, with thanks to sponsors Food & Catering Services.

Nursing Professor Judy Bornais Receives OCUFA Teaching Award

Prof. Bornais, the faculty's experiential learning specialist, will receive an OCUFA Teaching Award at a October 27 ceremony in Toronto.

OCUFA represents 17,000 faculty and academic librarians in 27 faculty associations across Ontario.

This year's other recipients of the award are: chemistry lecturer Andrew P. Dicks of the University of Toronto, psychology professor Steve Joordens of the University of Toronto Scarborough, and chemistry professor Stephen MacNeil and psychology professor Eileen Wood of Wilfrid Laurier University.

Ed Lumley Centre for Engineering Innovation.

The current edition of VIEW magazine features a 12-page special section on the Ed Lumley Centre for Engineering Innovation.

UWindsor is the midst of the most exciting transformation in its history. The momentum that began with the Medical Education Building has continued as the $112-million Ed Lumley Centre for Engineering Innovation (CEI) opened its doors on September 17.

Video replays Welcoming Celebration

UWindsor president Alan Wildeman plays a song of his own composition during Welcoming Celebration, September 5 in the St. Denis Centre.

A video by producer Peter Freele of the Centre for Teaching and Learning captures all the excitement of last week's Welcoming Celebration ushering in the Class of 2016.

The centrepiece of the event was an original song written and performed by UWindsor president Alan Wildeman.

Freele said the format of this year's celebration marked "a pretty radical departure" from past practice.

"The CTL team leveraged our digital technology to build up the interactive nature of the event," he said. "It ended up becoming almost a pep rally, as we engaged the natural exuberance of the students, using three cameras in the crowd to put them on-screen live."

He said interspersing shots of celebrating students with computer graphics exhorting them to "raise the roof" helped make the attendees into participants.

"The students were contributing to the event rather than passively watching it," said Freele. "Because they were so much a part of it, they were open to the message, which Dr. Wildeman did a great job of bringing all together. It was the perfect showcase for his very warm and honest comments."

University Launches Employee Recognition Awards

To celebrate the outstanding contributions of employees to the achievement of the mission and vision of the university. There are six awards that honor various types of services, leadership and innovation. Deadline for nominations was September 28, 2012 and Human Resources will plan a special event to honor the employees for their outstanding dedication.

New Convocation Tradition Reflects Diversity on Campus

No More Prayers At Convocation Ceremonies

The institution of a moment of reflection to replace prayer during University of Windsor Convocation ceremonies will create a more inclusive atmosphere, says Kaye Johnson, director of the Office of Human Rights, Equity and Accessibility.

"We operate to make things as inclusive as possible—widening the circle," she says. "A moment of silent reflection will allow people to use this time as they need to, not as someone else decides."

Shawna Scott, a psychology student who will receive her master's degree during the October 13 Fall Convocation, welcomes the secular approach. President of the Windsor-Essex County Atheist Society, a ratified student club, she had petitioned the University this summer to adopt a moment of personal reflection.

"We are ecstatic that the university has made this change so that convocation is more inclusive of all students, both religious and nonreligious," says Scott. "All students go through a lot of hard work to graduate. No student should be excluded from any part of convocation."

She says she was taken aback by the prayer when she received her undergraduate degree, and feels validated by the University's decision.

"It's great to see the university be so responsive to our petition," Scott says. "We feel a lot of reassurance that the university does take our concerns seriously."

Many universities already embrace this format, Johnson says.

"In fact, many people are surprised to find that the Convocation ceremony included a prayer," she says.

The ceremony will introduce the moment of reflection with this wording:

"This day marks a new beginning, particularly for those about to celebrate their graduation. It is only fitting that we come together to recognize your achievements and commemorate your successes as you continue to your lifelong quest for knowledge and excellence. I ask that you take a moment to reflect on those who guided you along your path of learning, to appreciate our families, our teachers, our peers, the world in which we live, and all that inspires us."

Search for Vice-President Research

The Search Committee for the next Vice President, Research, has short-listed two candidates. The UWindsor campus community was invited to a public presentation to be given by each candidate, on the topic of "the role of research in the university today."

David Castle will make a presentation on Thursday, August 30, at 1:30 p.m. in room 203, Toldo Health Education Centre. Dr. Castle is Professor and Chair of Innovation in the Life Sciences at the University of Edinburgh. View his curriculum vitae.

Michael Siu made a presentation on Friday, August 31, at 9:30 a.m. in room 203, Toldo Health Education Centre. Dr. Siu is Distinguished Research Professor, and past Associate Vice-President Research, at York University. View his curriculum vitae.

Following the presentations, the candidates will have an opportunity to respond to questions from the audience.

Campus Transformation Plan to provide framework for next 50 years

The creation of a safe pedestrian esplanade on Sunset Avenue between Fanchette and Wyandotte streets is among the highlights of a Campus Transformation Plan to be discussed at a public open house event on Wednesday, September 19.

The creation of a safe pedestrian esplanade on Sunset Avenue between Fanchette and Wyandotte streets is among the highlights of a Campus Transformation Plan to be discussed at a public open house event on Wednesday, September 19, from 4 to 7 p.m. in the CAW Centre's Ambassador Auditorium.

The plan involves improvements already underway and proposed projects through 2015.

It includes the proposed closure to vehicular traffic of Sunset Avenue from Fanchette to Wyandotte streets in 2013, and the development of an attractive walkway to support a pedestrian-friendly environment. Additional safety measures will include the installation of a crosswalk traffic light at the corner of Sunset and Wyandotte and a four-way traffic light to be added to the intersection of California and Wyandotte.

University of Windsor president Alan Wildeman will be joined by City of Windsor representatives at the September 19 event. He will introduce campus neighbours and other interested members of the community to the University's long-term plans to modernize the campus and prepare it to meet the needs of students for the next 50 years. Members of the media, students, faculty and staff are welcome to attend.

"An important factor in accomplishing the University's strategic goals is the availability of modern and inspiring infrastructure," says Dr. Wildeman. "We must continue to upgrade the campus to support the kind of experience we want our students to have and to help our faculty and staff to be their most productive and efficient. These improvements will enhance the competitive position of UWindsor within the post secondary system, and strengthen our engagement with the community. The campus experience should be one that people enjoy, and the spaces we are creating will help that happen."

Phase I campus improvements currently in the works through 2015 include:

Completion of the Ed Lumley Centre for Engineering Innovation—Fall 2012

Completion of space renovation to house the International Student Centre—Spring 2012

Completion of the third floor space in the Medical Education Building—Summer 2012

Completed demolition of the former Cody Hall residence and former drama building—Summer 2012

Creation of the Student Centre Courtyard outside Dillon and Memorial halls—Fall 2012

Streetscaping along Wyandotte from Sunset to Campbell, featuring new walkways, planters holding low perennials and shade trees, benches, bicycle racks and trash receptacles—Fall 2012

Demolition of four former residential buildings located along the Fanchette to Wyandotte pedestrian esplanade—Spring 2013

Renovations to the Odette School of Business—Fall 2013

Construction of an Innovation Centre and parking facility. This parking structure will offer visitor parking, allowing the current surface lot located at the corner of Wyandotte and Sunset to be developed into green space—Fall 2013

Developing plans to determine the future of the parking lots situated parallel to California between Fanchette and Wyandotte—ongoing

Construction of a Welcome Centre—Fall 2013

The transformation of downtown Windsor's Armouries building, the former Windsor Star building, and the former Greyhound bus depot into classroom and office space for the University's music, visual arts and film production programs; the School of Social Work; and the Centre for Executive Education—Fall 2014

Association Page

The Association

The Windsor University Retirees' Association-WURA (Faculty, Librarian, Administrator) at Windsor was formed in 1990, to give a unified voice to retirees; to provide a bridge for communication with the University; to encourage social contact among the retirees; and to open a few doors through which retirees could continue to contribute to the University of Windsor. Thus the Association is meant to fill what could otherwise be a void in the lives of retirees – possible isolation from the University and from their former colleagues; and possible lack of understanding of vital pension and health issues that affect them directly.

There are only two meetings of the full membership per year: in the spring and the fall. An informal social committee arranges several other events per year – dinners, plays, picnics, and so on – all of which are paid for by those who take part. The Association encourages smaller special interest groups to form as occasion and their interests warrant. Because of extreme economy of operation, dues have been kept at the level of $20 per year. This includes four issues of The Retirees' Newsletter.
