ESCI 1000-91 Natural Hazards & Disasters Course runs January 5, 2026 – April 6, 2026 This course is taught a-synchronous online.	The Earth's component systems and their interrelationships. Earth hazards and the Earth's interior processes: volcanism and earthquakes. Hazards and surface processes: landslides and floods. Atmospheric hazards: storms, hurricanes, and tornadoes. (May be taken by science students for credit but does not count as a science option towards the fulfillment of the specified requirements for a science degree). (2 lecture hours per week)
ESCI 4808-30 Life of the Honey Bee Course runs January 5, 2026 – April 6, 2026 This course is taught synchronous online.	The honey bee has been a valued and resourceful contributor to human civilizations since ancient Egypt. In this course, you will study the history of beekeeping up to modern-day practices. You will examine the lives of key individuals who were captivated by the honey bee and through their work have enriched our apiculture knowledge. Also explored are the wonders of the honey bee society, their life and times, and their economic and environmental contribution. We'll discover why these essential pollinators are vital to their colony, the agricultural industry, and the human food system. In the last ten years, global alarms have sounded concerning the well-being of the honey bee. (3 lecture hours per week)

As required by the Collective Agreement identified under Section 54:08 (a) of the WUFA Collective Agreement, the School of the Environment is hereby calling for applications who are suitably qualified and interested in teaching the above-mentioned courses.
