Common Themes: Course Delivery

- Majority of current and prospective students are comfortable studying online/remotely:
  - Strategic Counsel survey indicates there is a significant minority with some apprehension
- A high percentage in both surveys believe that at least some classes will be in-person during Fall/20
  - ABACUS survey.... >6 in 10 students believe there should be in-person classes with an option to attend remotely – if they choose

Feelings about Online Classes

- Majority of students feel that the quality is better with a F2F classes (Strategic Counsel)
- ABACUS survey, 53% used online courses to finish the term but said the experience was not good
- Strategic Counsel survey, ~50% of current students indicated they are now more willing to take an online course after the move to online in the W/20

Common Themes: Impediments to F/20

Two main issues other than course delivery were raised in both surveys:

1. Safety/Health Risks:

- Concern about coming to campus for F2F classes
  - In both surveys, ~40% have concerns about contracting COVID-19 or are not sure the campus will be safe
  - The most reassuring message to students and parents is one which reinforces that keeping student safe is the top priority:
    - ABACUS survey, ~ 80% of students would want to know the measures that would be taken for safety

Common Themes: Impediments to fall attendance

2. Financial Concerns

- Strategic Counsel survey, ~50% indicate their ability to finance university education has been impacted by COVID-19:
  - Impact was higher among non-high school prospective students
- Abacus survey, 40% of students have said that health risks and financial pressures are equal in terms of preventing attendance

COVID-19 is affecting attendance decisions

- In the ABACUS survey, 8% of students indicated they will no longer attend university this fall.
- In the Strategic Counsel survey, 8% of current students would consider skipping a term/year.
  - This number is higher especially for non-high school prospective students.

Health and Finances are affecting choice....

- ~30% of prospective students said that to offset the financial issues, they would attend a university close to home so they can continue to live at home.
- Those who have changed their mind about leaving home for school cite both financial and health risks as the main reasons.
- In the ABACUS survey, 49% of students indicated they were more inclined than ever to think about schools close to home.

International Prospective Student Survey

- Academica partnered with Maple Assist to administer a survey to prospective international students
- Survey was run from April 3-15 with 2,400 respondents across 17 countries
- Of the respondents:
  - 61% from India
  - 91% have applied to a Canadian post-secondary school within the past 6 months
  - 84% have been offered admission
  - 80% are still in their home countries

University of Windsor

International Prospective Student Survey
